Fund Manager Commentary

The US Federal Reserve cut interest rates by 0.25% at the end of the month, justifying the move on US-China trade uncertainty, despite some domestic economic indicators in the US showing recent strength. Markets continue to anticipate further cuts in 2019. In Europe bond yields also fell further during the month, in many cases into deeper negative territory. Manufacturing data points suggest a weak operating performance and outlook surveys remain generally soft with the latest German reading hitting a new low for the year. The election of Boris Johnson as Prime Minister has partly caused weakness in sterling during the month, with around a 3% fall against the dollar in the latter part of July. The chances of a hard Brexit at the end of October have clearly risen. The fund's equity exposure was the main driver of its positive return, though its fixed income and alternative allocations were also positive contributors. The equity performance was driven by the strength of the US market, though all equity markets performed well. In fixed income both credit and government bonds added value, though high yield credit was broadly flat. In alternatives the trading strategies and gold allocations both delivered positive returns.
