WHAT DOES THIS MODEL DO?

This model seeks to achieve capital growth in excess of inflation. The historical reference allocation above shows how a portfolio has typically been constructed to achieve the stated risk and return figures. However, the risks and returns of different assets are not static over time and historical returns are not a guide to future returns. This model therefore uses Kleinwort Hambros' dynamic asset allocation to invest in a wider range of asset classes in response to changing market and economic conditions. The model's current indicative asset class ranges are detailed above and may vary over time.

PERFORMANCE UPDATE

Over the quarter the portfolio appreciated 2.9%, ahead of its ARC peer group which rose 2.6%. The equity allocation was the main drivers of returns. The equity performance was driven by the UK and European positioning, though this was partially offset by the US names which detracted; impacted by sterling strengthening against the US dollar. Alternatives and bonds were modestly positive over the quarter.

Markets rallied in September and October as investors speculated on where peak interest rates would settle and how fast they would decline on the other side. Most thought a slowing would start after the November increase and the commentary from the central banks. Though this changed in December as rate rises continued on their upward path with no sign of slowing, causing markets to give back some of their gains from October and November.

Global equity markets returned 1.9%. European and UK Markets delivered the best returns up 11.5% and 8.9% respectively. At the other end US markets fell 0.3%, impacted by sterling strength versus the US dollar and the continuing weakness of growth stocks demonstrated by the Russell 1000 Growth down 5.2% over the quarter. The best performances came from AXA Framlington UK (+6.7%), iShares FTSE 100 (+8.7%), JOHCM Continental European (+14.0%), BlackRock Continental European Flexible (+12.3%), Robeco US Premium Equities (+5.7%) and Hermes Asia Ex-Japan (+4.4%).

The fixed income positioning benefited as bonds continued to rally, benefiting from their longer duration, though in December this did negatively impact performance. The alternatives were modestly positive. The gold position (+7.7%) delivered the best return, benefiting from its sterling hedge. On the other side this was partially offset by the weakness in the trading strategies in particular the Tail Risk Protection note and Lyxor Epsilon.

In November we sold the remaining US growth exposure, removing the holding of Loomis Sayles US Growth Equity, re-investing the proceeds into the iShares S&P 500 Equal Weight ETF, to increase the value tilt of the equity portfolio. In mid-December we reduced the duration of the government bond, switching all of our exposure into the Lyxor FTSE Actuaries UK Gilts 0-5yr ETF.
